LILIUM—LILY

Lilies are benefited by shade about the roots and stems, but do not do well with shade about their heads, so should be planted among fairly dwarf growing shrubs, ferns or herbaceous plants to give the mature stem the protection it craves from the too great heat of the sun and to keep the ground around the bulb more or less cool.

The soil for lilies should be fibrous and rooty, some leaf mold or peat added, and deeply dug. Sharp sand placed around the bulb insures good drainage. Charcoal and sulphur sprinkled about in planting tend to ward off attacks of worms and blue mold.

Plant 1 foot apart and at depths specified below. Water only lightly until they are well rooted, but liberally when about to bloom; keep free from aphid or green fly at all times.

Lily bulbs are for October to December delivery, except CANDIDUM, which should be ordered in September or October for early planting.

This is a very good material in which to grow bulbs, and it is especially adapted for use in the home, being clean and odorless.

It contains all the necessary plant food for almost all kinds of plants.

Before using it should be thoroughly moistened, and the bulbs planted in the same way as if soil were used. A special feature of this material is that bulbs can be grown in jardinières, fern dishes and other receptacles which have no drainage. After watering, the jardinière or dishes should be turned on side to drain off surplus water.

The treatment after planting in this material is the same as when planted in soil.
